

There Will Be Time Later

There will be time later
For the picnic in the sun
For the new house
And the new car
And the super duper refrigerator.

The basement will be made into a Rumpus Room
And the twins will have double-decker beds
Like they've always wanted.

There will be time later
For man to look around him
And decide what to spend his money on.

But the time is not yet.
Men are dying on hard-won beaches
Feeling their lives slip away from them
In falling planes
Turning their faces up to the sky
In the dark waves of the Atlantic ...

So long as this goes on
We MUST BUY
MORE VICTORY BONDS!

© Mona McTavish Gould

This poem is covered by a Creative Commons Canada Attribution No-Derivatives Licence. It may be shared freely, but please quote accurately and acknowledge the author each time the poem is used.